MUST TRY PLACES TO EAT IN THOMSON ROAD

WEE NAM KEE CHICKEN RICE

As one of the oldest chicken rice stores in Singapore, Wee Nam Kee is a rustic eatery famous for its steamed white chicken rice with the meat moist and juicy slicked in an aromatic sauce. Complementing the taste of tender chicken is the fragrant and flavourful Hainanese Rice. With options of roasted and soya sauce chicken as well, there's a chicken rice type bound to satisfy your appetite!

MOUTHWATERING CHOICES IN BALESTIER ROAD

Balestier Road is a great spot to taste a tantalising range of traditional Singaporean dishes. From local restaurants to hawker stalls, this foodie paradise offers culinary gems that will leave you craving for more.

LOY KEE BEST CHICKEN RICE

Craving for hot, steamy and fragrant chicken rice? Look no further than Loy Kee's chicken rice. Tuck into aromatic rice, fragrant with garlic and chicken broth flavours; smooth and supple meat where you can choose either steamed or roasted chicken. The dipping sauces deliver decently punchy chilli and ginger; and you can never go wrong with the dark soy sauce too.

Besides its iconic chicken rice, Loy Kee also has an extensive menu where you can enjoy a wide variety from breakfast bites such as kaya toast, chee cheong fun and porridge; to its Hainanese-style beef stew and many more.

FOUNDER BAK KUT TEH

Discover the "soup for the soul" with bak kut teh. Consisting of meaty pork ribs simmered in a broth of herbs and spices, this "meat bone tea" is a must-try dish; especially at Founder Bak Kut Teh. One of the few bak kut teh places that opens for supper, you can always satisfy your late night cravings with the soupy goodness of pork bones here.

Sip spoonfuls of soup to enjoy the tasty and fragrant broth or try dipping crispy Yoo Tiao (Chinese Fried Dough) into the hot piping peppery Bak Kut Teh for a thoroughly enjoyable experience.

Having a delicious meal is not complete at Founder Bak Kut Teh if one does not order the braised pig trotter dish. Cooked to perfection, savour the feeling of having all that meat, fat and skin melt in your mouth.

LOONG FATT TAU SAR PIAH

Literally translated as "Bean Paste Biscuit", the tau sar piah is a Chinese flaky pastry with green bean filling. Possibly the best tau sar piah in Singapore, discover Loong Fatt which specialises in serving the traditional sweet and salty variety. Considerably larger in size and slightly priced higher than its competitors, the tau sar piah from Loong Fatt is served fresh from the oven with a special crust that is soft and crispy at the same time.

Sesame seeds are sprinkled atop the sweet tau sar piah while those without the sesame seeds are the salty ones. Thick but not over the top, the filling is not overly saccharine (for the sweet type) while the savoury version hits the spot with its salty flavour.

ORIGINAL HERBAL SHOP

This shop is the place to go to for authentic-tasting traditional Chinese desserts and herbal drinks. A black, jelly-like dessert originally from Wuzhou, China, gui ling gao (kwai leng guo) is the crowd favourite at this shop. Made from 18 different natural herbs and simmered over a slow fire for hours, this special herbal dessert has many health-boosting benefits such as helping with digestion, strengthening the vital organs and reducing body heat with its cooling properties.

Other traditional desserts and drinks include 24 herbs herbal tea, chrysanthemum tea, peanut paste and sesame paste, bean curd and barley with gingko nuts and many more. One stand-out dessert worth a try is the mango sago in fresh milk, which is definitely not your typical mango sago dessert. Literally mango and sago in cold fresh milk, this interesting combination of fruit and milk is a cool and invigorating treat on a hot, sweltering day.

GOOD SPICE CARROT CAKE

Despite the stall's name, this popular breakfast dish consists of radish, egg, dark soy sauce and spring onions. Also known as "chye tow kueh", the carrot cake served here (black or white) is usually sold out by lunch hour.

The reason for this is that the stall owner fries to order, thus ensuring that each plate of carrot cake rarely has its quality compromised.

So, don't be put off by the ever-present queue, the result of fluffy eggs and savoury cake is definitely worth your while.

WAH KEE BIG PRAWN NOODLE

Be prepared to wait in line to taste the famous prawn noodles here. This signature dish serves fresh and succulent big prawns that come in a richly robust broth. The broth visually stands out with its bright orange tint thanks to the roe of the prawns used.

Don't forget to try the Mee Kia (egg noodles) which is highly recommended. Available in dry and soup options, the thin noodles are cooked al dente to give that springy, pleasant chewy texture. The bits of pork lard added in the dish give it that extra oomph. Stir some sambal into the mix to make your noodles even more flavourful!

YEAN HENG PANCAKE

The traditional peanut pancake is a popular breakfast staple as well as an all-time snack favourite. Its popularity is evidenced with the fast-selling pancakes at stall of Yean Heng Pancake where the pancakes are usually sold out shortly after noon, particularly so on weekends.

Every bite of the peanut pancake brings you a delightful combination of crunchiness and softness as the crispy exterior pairs well with the almost mochi-like inside of the pancke amply filled with freshly ground peanut and sugar.

Besides the original peanut filling, you can choose from an assortment of fillings such as red bean paste, lotus paste and coconut. Don't forget to give the crepe-like crispy pancake a try while you are at this stall.

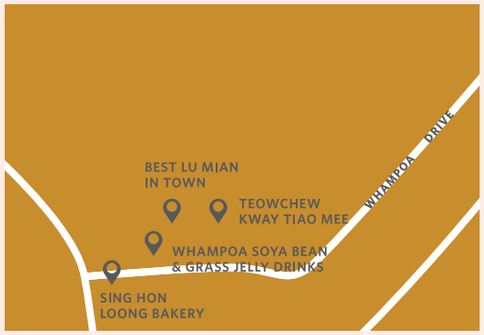
WHETTING YOUR APPETITE IN WHAMPOA DRIVE

Take a trip down to Whampoa Drive and discover a food oasis containing some of the very best Singapore has to offer.



BEST LU MIAN IN TOWN

Right off the bat, one might be wondering if Best Lu Mian In Town lives up to its lofty name. While best is certainly subjective, this eatery definitely ranks up there among aficionados. Braised pork, fish nuggets and crispy yam dough bathe together alongside the noodles in a thick, heavenly gravy in each meal.

At $3 - $4 a bowl with great taste and generous ingredients, Best Lu Mian In Town honestly sounds like a fantasy in reality.

SING HON LOONG BAKERY

Holding on to its traditional roots, this 24-hour bakery continues to produce hundreds of delicious bread loaves per day. Ever since its inception over 50 years ago, the Sing Hon Loong Bakery has slowly developed a reputation for the quality and dedication that goes into each and every one of their fluffy loaves.

Beloved by Singaporeans all over the island, Sing Hon Loong prides itself on its traditionally made loaves which have a delectable, cottony texture to them. Customers can even opt to have their bread prepared with kaya, butter or peanut butter upon purchase, while filled buns are also available should you want some variety.
